In Museums, Monuments, and

National Parks, Meringolo traces the beginnings of public history to the creation of national parks beginning in the late 19th century.

In the prologue, Meringolo argues,

“ The goal of this book is to illuminate the cultural roots of the work we now call ‘ public history ’ so that we may more fairly and more accurately define and critique it ” (p. xxix).

Their collaboration with entrepreneurs, academics, curators, and bureaucrats alike helped pave the way for other governmental initiatives, from the Smithsonian Institution to the parks and monuments today managed by the National Park Service. All of these developments included interpretive activities that shaped public understanding of the past.

Meringolo ' s “ Museums, Monuments and National Parks ” fills a critical gap in the public history field ' s understanding of itself. It dates the emergence of public history – not to the late 1970s – but to the mid-nineteenth century, while focusing specifically on the creation of the Smithsonian institution and the National Park Service (NPS).
